

Colloidal Dynamics

Shervin Rafatnia
ICP
Universität Stuttgart

The dynamics of a single colloidal particle in fluid is studied by means of computer simulation. The solvent is modeled via the lattice Boltzmann method and a raspberry-like model is used for the colloidal particle. The results of translational and rotational velocity relaxations are discussed. We also study the electrophoresis of a single colloidal particle.